The real estate and mortgage industry affects nearly everyone in our society. Almost everyone seems to want real estate; even our government wants us to become the “Ownership Society.” Yet not everyone understands the ways to afford and keep it. Kendall Matthews unique ability to address such a volatile subject makes him a much sought-after speaker and guest.

Mr. Matthews is always happy to discuss ways to slant a particular story or interview to suit a specific audience. He is just as comfortable talking about how people can capitalize in the real estate industry by following the four simple steps to building wealth as talking about little known real estate investing methods for business professionals.
